MILLY.

"I guess poor Jim will have to go without his supper to-night," said Widow Hosmer, as she peered anxiously out into the bleak, rainy twilight. Pete had sprained his leg so, slipping down out of the hayloft, that he can't take a step on it, and I s'pose you and I will have to finish the chores, Milly."

"All right, mother; I can milk old speckie as well as not; and then we have only to close up things for the night. Pete managed to get the hay down before he got himself down, but I do think he is the most awkward, unlucky creature that we ever had on the place. Here it isn't a week since he almost cut his thumb off, and its a mercy he didn't burn the house up yesterday, when he went and started the great fire in the fireplace without ever taking the boards off the chimney!"

"Yes, that's so; he does seem a bit unbalanced; but I feel sorry for the poor fellow. He's groaning dreadful with his leg, and won't let me do a thing for it; says he has got it wrapped up and thinks it will get easier after he gets to bed. I gave him some liniment for it and he went to his room, and now comes this dispatch from Jim, and no one to go to the station with his lunch."

"Never mind, mother; we'll fix it somehow," answered pretty, brown-eyed Milly, as she bustled about, putting on her waterproof and overshoe preparatory to finishing the chores, and the darkness hid the rosy flush with which she said as the first tinking streams of milk made music in the tin pail: "Mother, I believe I can carry Jim's lunch down to him myself!"

"Mercy, Milly! I'd never dare to let you!—the night so dark, and the road so long and lonely! No, indeed, child; Jim would never allow it."

"I know, but it is too bad for the poor fellow to go without his supper this cold, bleak night, and I know every inch of the way with my eyes shut.'

Mrs. Hosmer shivered a little as she drew her shawl closer against the keen autumn blast, and one could see that her resolution wavered a little.

"A cup of nice, hot coffee from home would seem sort of cheerful to him," she said, in a meditating tone, "and it's proper kind of you to make the offer, child; but I doubt it's being safe for you going so far alone."

"Nobody would be likely to be out such a night as this, unless it should be some of the neighboring farmers, and even if there were the darkness would hide me."

"I'm afraid to let you go, Milly. I've heard of tramps, and—"

"I'll tell you, mother; I'll take Jim's revolver! He left it in his room the last time he was at home."

"Well," began Mrs. Hosmer, doubtfully, "though you'd never dare to use it."

"Yes, I would, if I really needed to!" responded Milly; "so let us call it settled, and go in and get something nice put up for lunch."

Really pleased down in her maternal heart for this regard for her son's comfort, Mrs. Hosmer gave a reluctant consent; for Jim was her only and almost idolized child, little Milly being only the daughter of a dear dead friend whose child Mrs. Hosmer had gladly taken to her home and heart.

The farm was small and Jim detested farming, so a man was always employed on the place, while ambitious Jim risked life and limb as an engineer. He was now a handsome, stalwart fellow of twenty-six, whose broad shoulders, bronzed face, and merry eyes were secretly enshrined in Milly's heart as her ideal of all that was noble and manly. As for Jim, he, too, had an ideal, and often as he sat waiting on his engine he pictured a future fireside to which he could turn for rest instead of to his barren boarding house, and the woman's face that always smiled his welcome in its light was wonderfully like the little picture of Milly that he always carried in the pocket of his blue flannel shirt. Many a time the engine light shone over the sweet face as it lay on his grim palm at intervals of work, and Jim would whisper, softly, "By and by, little girl," as he carefully slipped it back where it beat with every beat of his heart.

Working faithfully and steadily, secretly laying the foundation of that ideal home, Jim had gained the respect and confidence of his employers and was on the road to promotion. But his work now was somewhat varied, and when the busy season came and freight was moving freely, he often ran a "wild train" through Rockfield, as the little place was called, where a station had been erected for the accommodation of the surrounding farmers.

On these occasions he generally sent home a dispatch, as in the present case, and on return found a tempting lunch waiting his coming, and sometimes, if the weather was fine, got a glimpse of Milly and his mother and a moment's chat. His dispatch to-night read:

"Run through Rockfield to-night just ahead of ten o'clock express, reaching there about a quarter of ten."

"I will start only just in time to get there as the train arrives," said Milly, as they made the coffee and frizzled some slices of ham; "If I walk fast I can get there in fifteen minutes, and I don't believe the coffee can get cold in that time, all wrapped up in this big bottle and shut up in the pail."

"You might carry it in a little pail and set it on the stove in the station till Jim comes," suggested Mrs. Hosmer.

"I don't believe there would be a fire there; and besides, I would rather not go in. I can't bear Tom Kennedy's comments or company. I shall just stop under the porch till the train comes, and then I can hand Jim the lunch-pail and slip away before any one notices me."

"Maybe that would be best," asserted Mrs. Hosmer, who knew how disagreeable the attentions of the sandy-haired young station agent were to her adopted daughter. "But, Milly, do be careful and take care of yourself. If anything should happen to you I should never forgive myself—never! In fact, I have half a mind not to let you go, after all."

"What! with this for company?" said Milly, gaily, showing the revolver clutched tightly under her waterproof; "what a foolish mamma! Now good-bye! I shall be back before you know it." And with a kiss Milly disappeared in the dismal drizzle with a skip, and a good little laugh as soon as she was out of sight at the thought of seeing Jim.

Arriving at her destination, she softly crept up into the shelter of a deep doorway and looked down the track, where she expected even now to see the distant light of Jim's engine. But not the faintest gleam was visible. Surprised, she crept along and peered in at the clock through the station window. The hands pointed to half-past nine.

"That stupid old clock!" she exclaimed, petulantly, as she slipped back to her hiding place, "we might have known it would be too fast or too slow; it never is right, except by accident. Now Jim's coffee will be as cold as a stone—and I too, for that matter!" she added, shivering and drawing closer into the corner out of the wind.

But the next moment the sound of low voices almost at her side sent her heart into her throat, and at the next bound her blood flew through her veins like fire.

"Don't turn cussed fool now," exclaimed a gruff voice in a hoarse undertone. "It's a little late to turn soft-hearted just when the game is ours; and I ain't no hand to put up with no nonsense, you know that, Bill."

"I don't mean nothing—only if I was sure there wouldn't be no women and little children—specially little children—ever since little Tillie died—"

"Now, bother that!" angrily interrupted the other, with a fierce oath. "If I'd supposed you'd ever turn out such a chicken-livered coward I'd seen you starve before I'd have taken you into this. But it is too late now; there is a cool fifty thousand on that express train to-night, and I'll have it or die. You do your part and share the plunder, or you back down and I'll put an end to you. But you shan't stop me—I'll see to that, Bill."

"Jest give me a pull at the flask and I'll be all right. I never desert a friend, you know that, old fellow."

"All right, then," said the other, now molified; "let's get to work. Mike is at his post, isn't he?"

"Yes, jest the other side of the building. If that station chap sets foot outside before we've had time to finish our work Mike will send a bullet into that sorrel top of his before you could wink. He will meet us at the old oak ten minutes after the train is due, and we'll be off. Now let's go up to the cut and get them rocks down on to the track mighty lively. There ain't much time to spare."

As they noiselessly moved away the man's last whisper rang in Milly's ears like a death-knell. Sure there was not "much time to spare!" Of course, they knew nothing of Jim's train, that would, within a few minutes, come rushing into the death trap they were to set. And she could give no alarm. The express never did more than slightly slack its speed to drop some package on the platform; no one was at the station except the sleepy agent, all unconscious of the terrible guard that stood beside him; long before she could get the nearest neighbor there it would be too late—all these thoughts rushed like lightning through Milly's distracted brain. There was no one to know or to aid but God and herself. She lifted her eyes to the starless sky in mute appeal, then turned and sped like a deer through the darkness toward the spot chosen for this dreadful deed. Well was it that she knew, as by instinct, every step of this ground, even the very rocks piled on the edge of the rocky gourge, that now were meant for the crushing out of human life. Only at Jim's last visit she had walked with him here to this very spot. Now, as she approached, she heard a heavy, grinding sound and the subdued, panting exclamations of the men as they strove to move the heavy stones from their beds.

"By the Eternal! there she comes! they've changed the time! Quick now, with this biggest one!"

Poor Milly! she knew what light was drawing so fearfully near. Not the express, but the engine of the man she loved better than her own life. She drew near to the panting, cursing men, till she felt as if they could hear her heart beat, then, as they cried, "Now! over with it!" she breathed, "O Jim! my darling! my darling!" and fired two swift shots at the men before her.

A groan and a cry of rage told her that she had not failed in her aim. The train passed swiftly by below her and assured her that her lover was safe; then she sank down in a little, quivering heap in the darkness. Nothing mattered now. Those dreadful wretches might find and tear her to atoms now if need be; she had saved the man she loved, and that was enough.

But a moment or two she rallied, as the cool rain beat upon her face, and rose softly to her feet. She must see him now at all hazzards; she must see and tell him all or she could not live. She flew over the ground like a mad creature. Nothing held her flight until she reached the train, where Jim's face shone upon her from the engine cab, and she fell with a speechless gasp beside it. In a moment she was in Jim's arms, someone brought brandy and dropped some upon her cold lids, and after awhile she heard Jim's tender words as he held and kissed her, and then sat up, pale and trembling, to tell her story.

But the express stopped that night, and when it went on it bore with it the two wretches who had sought to destroy it with its precious freight of life, and left a heavy purse for brave Milly, a contribution from the grateful passengers whose lives she had saved.

On going to the top of the cut the men had been found pinioned by the rock that they had partly lifted to hurl upon the track below. Milly's bullet had gone through the arm of the one called "Bill." As his hold relaxed, the heavy rock had rolled back upon their legs, holding them both prisoners. The second man was Pete, Mrs. Hosmer's hired hand. Mike had disappeared.

But Milly was the heroine of many a day, and when, soon after, she was about to become Jim's happy wife, she got a silver tea service fit for a princess "With the gratitude and best wishes of the——Ex. Co., for James Hosmer's brave wife."—Arthur's Home Magazine.

Pearls of Thought.

Some natures are so sour and ungrateful that they are never to be obliged.

Avoid greatness; in a cottage there may be more real happiness than kings ortheir favorites enjoy.

Let friendship gently creep to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.

It is no help to a sailor to see a flash of light across a darkness, if he does not instantly steer accordingly.

It is a masterpiece to draw good out of evil, and by the help of virtue to improve misfortunes into blessings.

In studying character, do not be blind to the shortcomings of a warm friend or the virtues of a bitter enemy.

Words are spiritual forces, angels of blessing or cursing. Unuttered, we control them; uttered, they control us.

Customs are even stronger than laws, and yet the most of them are observed in defiance of common sense and truth.

The inequalities of life are irremediably based on four pillars, which stands as firm as the perpetual hills—strength, talent, wealth, and rank.

If you were willing to be as pleasant and as anxious to please in your own home as you are in the company of your neighbors, you would have the happiest home in the world.

A man should learn to detect and watch that gleam of light which flashes across his mind from within more than the lustre of the firmament of bards and sages. Yet without notice he dismisses his thought because it is his.

Of Perpetual Motion And Self-Motor Inventions.

A Wheel Mathematically Constructed, Which Will Run Until it is Worn Out, is Successfully Tested.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 19.—Three men stood in a little workshop at No. 25 Howard street, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon, intently watching the revolution of a wheel, which seemed to be propelled by a mysterious power. The wheel moved at a rapid rate. It combines the idea of a self motor and perpetual motion, and is the invention of Mr. Joseph Wasserott. The invention is the work of a life-time. Forty years ago, in Germany, at the age of 22, Mr. Wasserott conceived the idea of running machinery without steam or any other power then in use. He went to work on what he called a self motor, and constructed a model, which proved a failure, however. He then emigrated to America and settled in Philadelphia, where he began work anew on his invention. Before he finished it he moved to Reading and finally to Baltimore. The second model also lacked completeness and was rejected by the Patent Office. A third, which was constructed while Mr. Wasserott was a resident of Hanover, Pa., met with a similar fate. He was not discouraged. Last year he came to Alleghany and began work on a fourth model, which he completed and tested yesterday. He claims that it will revolutionize steam power, and will immediately apply for a patent. The invention consists of a wheel, or rather a wheel within a wheel, supported by a roller which creates the motion. Mr. Wasserott does not claim perpetual motion, saying that nothing is perpetual, and that the machine's motion will only last as long as the machine. The wheel is composed of forty pieces in four movable sections, and is worked by levers, which receive their driving powers from the weight of the wheel. This weight is contained in the top part of the wheel when at a standstill, and as it moves it is transferred from one section to another, so that the force of the weight causes the ceaseless revolution. The test is very successful.

As soon as the patent is granted a ten-foot wheel will be built to operate heavy machinery, the inventor says. The wheel can be used to run any machine. "It will be of special benefit to farmers and country residents," said Mr. Wasserott. "By using my invention they can make their own electric light, thrash corn with it and grind their own flour."

Mr. Wasserott says the whole idea of his invention consists in a mathematical calculation, but he will not explain what it is. He is an old man, and was born near Ulm, in Wurtemberg, Germany, the home of inventors. He is poor, and follows the business of a dyer and cleaner. His leisure hours were devoted to the completion of his work, which he hopes to make a success in his old days and live to see it in successful operation.

A Story of Lincoln.

Mr. Lincoln, says Ben Perly Poore was found one morning by a visitor counting several small piles of greenbacks on his table.

"This, sir," said he, noticing the gentleman's surprise, "is something out of my usual line; but a President of the United States has a multiplicity of duties not specified in the Constitution or Acts of Congress. This is one of them. This money belongs to a poor negro who is a porter in the Treasury Department, and is at present very sick with the small-pox. (He did not catch it from me, however; at least, I think not.) He is now in the hospital, and could not draw his pay because he could not sign his name. I have been at considerable trouble to overcome the difficulty and get his money for him, and have at length succeeded in cutting red tape, as the newspapers say. I am now dividing his money and putting by a portion in an envelope, labeled with his name, along with my own funds, according to his wish."

Adjourned The Court.

A man who was summoned to serve on a jury began to make excuses, when the judge, interrupting him, said:

"Never mind all that. You should know, sir, that it is your daty to serve your country. The fact that your business is likely to suffer is no excuse. Such men are summoned every day.

"Hold on, Judge, you ain't heard all my excuse yet."

"I don't want to hear it."

"But you must—"

"I tell you that I will not. Mr. Sheriff—"

"Jest a minit, Jedge, an' then ef you say I must sarve, why, I'll sarve. Me an' a lot o' fellers was playin' poker when the officer—"

"Poker!" exclaimed the judge. "Why, dear fellow, where's the game? I'll join you. Mr. Sheriff, adjourn the court."

Balloons for War Purposes.

M. Renard's aerostat is intended for war purposes. Balloons have played a part in war for a century. In the French revolution they were used with success; General Jordan is said to have won the battle of Fleurus by observations taken from a balloon, which, after surveying the Austrian lines, was brought down by means of a windlass. Balloons were used by the French in the Italian campaign, and an ascension at Solferino gave Napoleon an insight into the Austrian lines that enabled him to win the battle. During our civil war McClellan had a balloon corps which did good service. On one occasion General Fitzjohn Porter's balloon, from which he was taking a bird's eye view of the Confederate troops, broke its cable and went sailing inside the enemy's line. Luckily for him, in descending he struck an air current that drifted the balloon back into the Union lines. It was from one of the same machines that Mr. Lowe sent the first aerial telegram from a point 600 feet above the earth. He also watched the two days' fight at Fair Oaks from an aerostat that hung 2,000 feet above the battle ground. During the siege of Paris seventy balloons were sent adrift. Of these only three were lost. Of the other sixty-seven the majority landed in France, but one or two, starting at night, lost their bearings and drifted into Norway and Sweden. When Winfield Scott lay before Vera Cruz, John Wise, the father of aeronautics in this country, offered to capture the city by dropping shells into it from balloons. The idea of loading shells in a balloon, which, as Tissandier says, will tip over if a chicken bone is thrown from it, was the cause of much merriment at the time. The idea, however, has lately been re-adopted by a Mr. Gower, of London, who proposes to build torpedo balloons, and by General Russell Thayer, of the United States army, whose plan is to fit out a balloon in much the same style as a modern frigate, and station it over a city to drop shells and dynamite on the garrison until they surrender. That these plans will never be carried out? who can say? But will it be in our time? Shall we ever get into our special balloon at San Francisco one evening and land in New York the next morning?—San Francisco Argonaut.

There Was Money in it.

Not so many years ago but that most readers can easily remember it, the idea of the telephone was looked upon as a visionary scheme that never would amount to anything, practically. At that time, many of those that believed in the invention, and bought all the stock they could in the Bell telephone company, were very poorly off in consequence; but they held on to their stock and now they have their reward.

Professor Bell, the inventor, has a snug fortune of five millions. Mr. Blake bids poverty defiance from behind an intrenchment of four millions. Mr. W. H. Forbes is credited with about as much as both of these gentlemen together, and Mr. G. G. Hubbard enjoys as the reward of his early foresight and courage upwards of three millions. Mr. Theodore N. Vail, who was at one time an operator, devotes the little time he spares from the general management of the American Bell telephone company to the care of a private fortune estimated at not less than four millions. It is also said that among the telephone millionaires must be placed Alexander Cochran and C. P. Bowditch with about three millions each, and Thomas Sanders with not less than two and a half millions. There are many others besides these mentioned.

Many large manufacturing concerns have done an immense and profitable business in connection with the telephone. The Western Union Telegraph company draws annually now about $400,000 as royalty from the American Bell company, and wants more.

The various sums just mentioned foot up nearly forty million dollars; a quarter of that sum would be a magificent yield from an enterprise only nine year old. The patent is supposed to be worth twenty-five million dollars, and the money now invested in operating the telephone is over one hundred million dollars. When the full history of the early days of the telephone in America is written, it will be as thrilling as a romance.

WHEN HE WHISTLES.

When a man is sad he whistles in a doleful tone. Nine times out of ten he won't choose a dismal air, but he will whistle a lively tune—a hornpipe or a negro minstrel end song—and he will draw the melody in and out between his lips in a way to draw tears from all listeners. Sometimes a man accomplishes the same result when he is cheerful and trying to whistle real good.

A Dog Which Hankered.

Recently, on a forenoon a farmer, whose wagon needed some repairs, stopped at a blacksmith's shop on one of the avenues. He had with him a dog almost as big as a yearling calf, and when the wagon was run into the shop the dog was tied to a post near the door. By and by quite a little crowd gathered to comment on his size and appearance, and along came an under-sized, common-looking cur and sat down about ten feet away. It was then the big dog swelled up and sent forth thunderous growls and howls. He scratched the earth. He demanded blood. He tugged at his chain with the strength of an ox.

"Don't anyone let that 'ere dog loose!" cautioned the farmer, as he came from the back end of the shop.

"S'posen we did? queried one of the boys.

"Then he'd lessen the number of dogs in this village by fifty!

The farmer went away, and the big dog continued to tug and strain to get at the little dog. The latter didn't scare worth a cent. He sat there as if he meant to stay to dinner. Everybody was wishing that the big dog would get loose, when along came a man who stopped and asked:

"What's the trouble?"

"That big dog wants to get free."

"Oh, he does? Well, I'll help him to."

He walked up to the post and cut the rope, and the next instant the big dog and the little dog were so mixed up that one could hardly seperate them.

But this lasted only a minute. All at once the big dog broke for the sidewalk and up the street, and the little dog hung to his hind leg for at least a hundred feet. The farmer came out to see his Jumbo legging it for the country, while the little dog sat down on the curbstone watching his flight, and he turned to the yelling crowd and exclaimed:

"What are you fools laffin' at? Didn't I tell you my dog wouldn't be mean enough to fight anything less'n a panther?"

Why She Wouldn't Marry Him.

They were on a wedding tour in this direction the other day and the happy couple were accompanied by three others. It was a sweet spectacle to see the four pairs promenading up Jefferson avenue with hands clasped and a taffy-like smile spread over face, and hundreds of pedestrians stopped to gaze and admire. The porter of a wholesale house wasn't quite satisfied with what he could see, but stopped the last couple and inquired:

"Is it a case of love?"

"You bet!" replied the young man.

"Are they extremely happy?"

"Jest a-biling over, sir."

"Why don't you and this girl follow suit?"

'I'm perfectly willin', but Sarah kerflunks on me. I've asked her over twenty times to have me, but it's no go."

"Never! never! she firmly said as she rolled her cud of gum to the other side for a moment. "When a man takes me to a circus and crawls under the canvas to save expenses, and then can't see the man with the lemonade nor the boy with the peanuts, I wouldn't hitch to him if I had to go out and set a bear-trap to catch a partner!"—Detroit Free Press.

How Good Writing is Acquired.

Writing to be good must be legible and rapid; to be legible it must have good form, and to be rapid it must be simple in its construction as regards forms and their combination, and it should be small, since it is obvious that the pen can be carried over short spaces easier and more rapidly than long ones; and it should have little shade, and be written with a pen above medium for coarseness that the unshaded lines may have the requisite strength. I shall speak more specifically respecting form, leaving movement and other essentials to speakers who may follow me. As a rule, there should be but one form used for each letter of the alphabet, and especially should this be true of a copy for learners, having a single standard form, the teacher will not only repeat it with greater accuracy, but the pupil will more readily comprehend and master it. Letters and words sould be critically analyzed at the blackboard. This will greatly aid the pupil to acquir a clear and complete mental conception of good letters and their proper combination. Many pupils learn to write through the shere power of imitating the copy before them, but not having a high mental conception of their copies, when they are removed, their writing at once degenerates; the hand is without a definite model and strikes at random, and produces doubtful results. While the pupil, who through analytic study and practice, comes soon to have a clear conception of what he would do, thus is presented to the hand an ever present model for which it will strike and ultimately attain.—Penman's Art Journal.

JOHN MOORE, the editor of the Williamsport Breakfast Table, has quite a lively time of it just now. He prints articles reflecting on the character of certain men and next he is mixed up in a libel suit. Last Monday he was arrested at the instance of Ex-Mayor Patterson, for "false, scandalous and malicious libel."

THE following paragraphs are an extract from an able article which appeared in the Cincinati Comercial Gazette of recent date, and which discusses the business situation of the country in a cool and reasonable manner and at once impresses the reader that the writer possesses good, sound judgment:

It is difficult to satisfy the average business man, whether merchant or manufacturer, with a moderate volume of trade, even if it is fairly remunerative, at least in this country, where energy is at a premium and the" making haste to be rich" is too frequently the all-absorbing ambition. Nothing short of a boom in the markets to make a large increase in sales and percentage of profits is accepted as the desirable limit of prosperity. But it should be considered that this cannot be permanent, for there must be a limit to an advance in prices, which always stimulates production and finally overstocks the markets and produces a reaction and a depression, which brings stagnation and loss. The recuperation in trade which is now in progress has all the indications of being healthful and permanent. It has not been rapid, and it is not likely to be overdone. Commodities which have been selling below the cost of production have generally advanced in price to where they can be produced without loss, and in most instances at a fair profit, and yet are cheap enough to go steadily into consumption Business has been lifted out of the slough of despond and is now progressing on its journey, not without meeting some obstacles, but with ability to overcome them, pursue its proper course and take in the legitimate and moderate profits to which it is entitled. There are some labor troubles, but they are of limited significance, and, for the most part, they are such as might be avoided if it was not for a few persons whose occupation would be gone if they did not stir up trouble and contention between workmen and their employers. Wages have been higher than they are now, but it is doubtful whether there was ever a time when the purchasing value of wages was any larger; all of the prime necessities of life and most of the comforts and luxuries are obtainable at a much lower cost than when higher wages were paid.

With material evidence of prosperity at home, we are sure to make progress in the recuperation of business, although our foreign trade is not wholly satisfactory, and although prices are likely to remain upon a comparatively low plane for an indefinite time. We are happily free from any entangling foreign complications, and whatever may occur in Eastern Europe—whether war breaks out or peace continues between the large powers or the smaller countries—our home trade cannot be disturbed. This country is large enough, and its interests and industries are sufficiently diversified to make an interchange of commodities within itself large in volume, and a source of profit not only to producers but to all who participate in the movement, of which the transportation interest is the most important. A prosperous condition of our foreign commerce is greatly to be desired, but we seem destined to have a good home trade in any event, and the other will follow in the course of time.

DR. SAWBONES says the surest way to take a cold is to be always hugging the stove. Young man remember this, and when you go to see your girl on sunday night don't spend your time hugging the stove; but if you do get a cold Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine can be relied upon to cure you.

A Dangerous Alliance.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 20.—Dispatches from Battleford say that the southern and northern tribes of Indians are on the point of forming an alliance to sweep the whole country from the far north to the boundary line, massacreing the inhabitants and destroying their homes. From information obtained from runners who have been among the various tribes it is predicted that the trouble may come at any moment. The government was warned very much in the same manner of the Saskatchewan trouble, but neglected to take precautionary measures until too late.

Mr. Mingle the Only One.

But May Be the Returns of that Land Swindle are Not All In Special Dispatch to THE PATRIOT.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 19.—In 1880 Mr. S. Q. Mingle, a music teacher doing business in this city, entered into a correspondence with F. Foster Smith and J. B. Benton, representing themselves as the United States Land and Investment Company of New Jersey. As was printed in yesterday's PATRIOT, Mr. Mingle was swindled out of 6,000 acres of land in Clinton and Centre Counties. The land company agreed to pay Mr. Mingle six $1,000 bonds and only sent him three, which on investigation proved to be not worth the paper they were printed on. These bonds were supposed to have been issued on lands in Texas which it was claimed were valued at $1,000,000. Mr. Mingle had Smith and Benton arrested Tuesday in New York and they are now in Ludlow street jail. When seen by a PATRIOT reporter this morning Mr. Mingle refused to make any statement. He said: "I was swindled by these men who wrote me glowing letters about the company and that is about all. My lawyer has advised me not to make any statement, as it might injure my case. I will not say anything either for or against it." Failing to get any information from the swindled music-dealer, your correspondent interviewed several business men and discovered that the Land Company had flooded this county with circulars about a year ago, but failed to catch anyone except Mingle.

STORM AND FLOOD.

The New York and New Jersey Coasts Under the Sea—Fierce Snow and Rain Storms.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The water of the Atlantic Ocean seemed to loose its equilibrium this morning and slopped over this way. Never before has such a high tide rolled in upon the city and incalculable damage has been done along the water front. At 10 o'clock, when the tide was at the full, the water was said by the ferry authorities to be nearly three feet higher than it had ever been known before. The bridges in the ferry houses on the North River were tilted up by the tide to an angle of thirty degrees, and the incoming boats scraped along on top of the rack guards. West street was a sight to behold. The foot of Cortlandt street was a sea. The water was over a foot deep in the middle of the roadway, and the tide came bubbling up out of the culverts like in a bubbling mineral-water spring. All the basement saloons and stores along the water front were from one to four feet deep in water. In Vesey street, between Washington and West streets, business was suspended at 9 o'clock on account of the water flooding the cellars and ground floors of the business houses. Everett's Hotel and dining rooms at 11 o'clock had the floor submerged by over two feet of water. In Barclay street the water had not attained the height that it had in Vesey, though all the cellars were flooded and everything in them movable floating about.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 24.—The tide at high water this morning was higher than it has been since 1867, when 70 feet of the Light-house Cottage, on Massachusetts avenue, was washed away. The tide-water is on every avenue in the city, except Atlantic, and boats are brought into use to convery residents to and from their homes. The ocean ends of all the avenues are flooded, and Indiana avenue, on which the Brighton is located, from Pacific avenue to the beach, is impassable. The wind, which has been blowing a gale for two days from the northeast, died out during the night, so that the sea ran down, and no great amount of damage was done, though the boardwalk is washed away in many places and property along the beach front is somewhat damaged. The works of the Drainage Company are damaged to the extent of about $4,000. No trains on the Camden and Atlantic or West Jersey Railroad have arrived. The tide was so high over the meadows that the tracks of both roads were floated out of position.

—A subscription list is being handed around for the purpose of raising the necessary funds to construct a street crossing from the southwestern corner of Main street to Musser's hotel.

WANTED at this office—about $50 in subscription money. The Holidays are approaching and that means that the printer needs money. Delinquent subscribers will please step to the front.

—Mr. F. S. Kauffman, of Lower Augusta, Northumberland county, Pa., came up last Saturday, to pay a visit of several days to his relatives in town, and to shoot as many deer as possible.

—We return our thanks to S. D. Tobias for a large bunch of the tallest cellery grown in this neighborhood, Snyd is the crack gardener in this valley, at least his products would go to prove as much.

—Em'l. H. Musser, executor of the estate of Elizabeth Shirk, deceased, late of Aaronsburg, advertises by bills the sale of the real estate of decedent, to take place, Nov. 28th, at 2 o'clock, p. m., on the premises.

—The Rev. Wm. Stout, Wharton, Ont., states.: "After being ineffectually treated by seventeen different doctors for Scrofula and blood diseases, I was cured by Burdock Blood Bitters." Write him for proof.

—Dr. J. W. Stam's professional card appears on the first page. The doctor has already an extensive practice and is busy every day. He is a man devoted to and untiring in his calling. We wish him continual success.

—Japanese etiquette requires visitors to remain at the places they are visiting until told to leave. No doubt the young man who visits his best girl on Saturday night thinks that kind of etiquette worthy of imitation.

—The remains of several of our dead were removed from the old cemetery to the new, last week. The sale of lots in "Fairview Cemetery" has fairly begun and there will be a lively demand for the same when winter has passed.

—Our grocery department has lately been filled with fancy and fine fruits, a full line of fresh canned goods, Peaches, dried and evaporated, nice California Apricots. D. S. Kauffman & Co.
Millheim, Pa.

—It is rumored that G. W. Foote, a former editor of this paper, contemplates starting a democratic paper at Mifflinburg. George seems to have his old hankering after pen, scissors and paste pot. Go on, there is millions in it!

—Mr. Swavely, of the Centre Democrat, Bellefonte, departed for home last Saturday, loaded down with a large bulk of books ordered to be bound in that office. We hope Mr. S. will repeat his visits to our valley, we think they do him good.

—The condition of Mr. Jacob Wolf, the father of Mrs. B. O. Deininger, remains about the same and we are sorry to state that all hopes for his recovery are given up. The patient is subjected to acute suffering at times and requires constant attendance.

—We take pleasure in recommending Hall's Hair Renewer to our readers. It restores gray hair to its youthful color, prevents baldness, makes the hair soft and glossy, does not stain the skin, and is altogether the best known remedy for all hair and scalp diseases.

—In the case of Commonwealth vs Frank Foote, of Millheim, at this week's court, Judge Furst decided to place him in the hands of some responsible man with whom he is to stay until of age. We understand that several substantial men offered to take the boy.

—Digestion the Great Secret of Life. A good digestion secured by taking Simmons Liver Regular.

"It is the only medicine that relieved me after suffering five years with dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and constipation. GEO. S. AYRES, Delaplane Sta., Va."

—The newly organized literary society of this place held its first regular meeting last Tuesday evening. All of the programme was gone through with except the debate, which was ommitted on account of the unavoidable absence of some of the disputants. The declamations and readings by some of the young ladies and gentlemen were exceptionally good. The meeting was well attended. When in better running order the society promises to become a very profitable institution.

NOTICE.—We will for the next five days sell all kinds of Guns at Cost. Remember, only five days time to buy any kind from the Winchester Rifle down to a $4.00 Shot Gun. D. S. Kauffman & Co.

—And still they come and Millheim's population keeps on increasing. The homes of Wm. Catherman, on North street and W. J Springer, on Penn street were made happy by the arrival of new babies last week. A bouncing boy for the former and a girl for the latter.

—A thick snow commenced falling on Sunday night and it kept falling quietly but steadily until we went to press, as though it meant business. The boys hunted up the stored-away sleds and the winter scene recalls visions of a merry Christmas time to the minds of many little ones.

—Mr. D. A. Musser, of this place who, in company with Daniel Gentzel, C. K. and R. S. Sober, of Coburn, had been on a week's hunt in West Virginia, returned last Thursday. The party brought with them seven fine deer as the result of their expedition. Mr. Musser reports a very pleasant trip.

—On Sunday forenoon Rev. Deitzler preached an impressive sermon from St. John 6:49 and 50 to his congregation in the Lutheran church. 68 communicants gathered around the altar to partake of the Lord's supper. Mr. J. W. Snook and Mr. Jacob Alter were admitted as members of the church.

KILLED IN A FLOUR MILL.—Mr. Frank E. Carney, of Lewisburg, employed at the Buffalo Mills, was instantly killed by the fall of an elevator caused by the breaking of a rope last week. He was 27 years of age. The deceased held the position of an assistant miller, was of industrial habits and a member of the M. E. church, of Lewisburg.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla thoroughly cleanses the blood, stimulates the vital functions, and restores the health and strength. No one whose blood is impure can feel well. There is a weary, languid feeling, often a sense of discouragement and despondency. Persons having this feeling should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify and vitalize the blood.

—Mr. Harry H. Rhoads, wife and child, of Manchaster, N. J., the oldest son of Mrs. Benj. Hengst, and an engineer on the New Jersey Central road, together with Mrs. Chauncey Foster and child, and Miss Jessie Rhoads, from Lewisburg, are all here on a visit at Rev. B. Hengst's. The party expect to enjoy a social Thanksgiving dinner to-day.

—Ladies, do not forget that the place to buy your hats and bonnets is at Mrs. E. J. Brumgard's on Main street. Her stock of Millinery Goods is unrivaled and is being continually replenished. For late styles, tasty work and reasonable prices she leads off. The holidays are coming on and if you are not provided yet with something new, you had better buy your goods of her.

FINE ELOCUTIONIST.—Rev. Charles Steck, the Lutheran minister of Bellefonte, has been engaged by Supt. McCloskey to attend the Teacher's Institute and give readings. The reverend gentleman is regarded as one of the most cultured readers and finished scholars in this section, and a rare treat will be given to all who appreciate the fine and beautiful. He pleases wherever received, and a large audience should greet him.—Clinton Democrat.

—Prof. N. Alfred Bierly, a native of Madisonburg, but now of New York City, was in town on Monday, for the purpose of effecting the organization of a singing class here, to be instructed in the rudiments of music. Mr. B. is a prominent musician and a perfect gentleman, bringing with him the best of references. He will spend the winter at Rebersburg, where he teaches two classes. There will be a meeting in the Methodist church of this place next Saturday evening, when proper efforts will be made to raise the class. The terms are very reasonable, and all the young folks possessed of some musical talent, should avail themselves of this opportunity to cultivate their talents. Come.

SCHOOL REPORTS.—Geo. W. Long, teacher of the Millheim Grammer Department, reports the following for the past month: Number of female scholars, 25; male scholars, 11—total 36. Average attendance of females, 18. males 7—total 25. Per cent. of attendance, females 75, males 54—total 63. Visitors during the month: Prof. C. H. Clark, E. E. Bressler. Adolph Miller, Prof. D. M. Wolf, Co. Sup't. R. A. Bumiller, Miss Cora Kreamer, Miss Annie Rhoads.

—Geo. E. Limbert, teacher of the Millheim Primary School, reports the following for the month ending Nov. 20th, 1885: Number of male pupils 33; female pupils 37—total 70. Average attendance, males 26, females 28. Per cent. of attendance, male 88, female 86—total 87. The following pupils were present every day: John Hardenburg, John Albright, Rufus Hauck, Randall Musser, Frank Foote, Ellery Brown, Theo. Brown, Sadie Hartman, Mary Hartman, Annie Weiser, Bertie Miller, Lodie Musser, Maud Musser, Carrie Spigelmyer, Lula Snook, Minnie Winkelblech. Pupils present every day except one, Jennie Reifsnyder and Cora Stover.

—D. Ray Foreman, teacher of the Coburn school submits the following report for the month ending Nov. 20th, '85: Number of scholars, male, 29; female 17. Per cent. of attendance, male 88, female, 93. Average progress, male 2¼, female 1¾. Average conduct, male 3, female, 2¼. Explanation: 1, very good; 2, good; 3, middling.

NOTICE.—The duplicate of school taxes for 1884 having been left in my hands for collection, I request all delinquents to settle their taxes until December 1st, as I will collect the same according to law after that date.

THANKSGIVING BANQUET AT THE FIRST NATIONAL HOTEL.—The following tempting bill of fare will be dished up to-day at the First National, S. T. Frain, Proprietor:

Dinner—Roast Turkey, Roast Turkey stuffed with oysters, Oyster Pot Pie, Stewed Chicken, Roast Lamb, Roast Beef, Roast Pork. Appropriate side dishes including the rarest delicacies of the season will be on the table.

Supper—Oyster Pie, Fried, Baked and Stewed Oysters, Fried Beef Steak, Mutton Chop, Pork Steak, Baked Rockfish, Fresh Mackerel.

Either of these meals will be served for 25 cents and a cordial invitation is extended to all to enjoy a fine Thanksgiving feast.

—Reifsnyder's building, to be hauled from Penn street to North street, proved too much for Ulrich's wagon. The first attempt at pulling resulted in a break of one of the hind axles and stopped all further proceedings. Yesterday interrupted operations were resumed and the shop was dragged into the middle of the road, when it struck a telephone pole and again a halt had to be made. Finally, in order to get the obstruction off the road, the building was razed and the lumber taken to its destination. The great trouble was that the committee, being minus its chairman since Mr. Bair's removal to the West, was unable to furnish a solution for the dilemma.

FORMAL OPENING.—Zeigler's bakery on Penn street will be formally opened to the public during the holidays. The new and well furnished rooms will be tastefully arranged for the reception of guests, and the choicest of fare will be served during the week, such as Roast Turkey, Fresh Oysters, prepared in all styles, Ice Cream, Cakes, &c. It is also the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler to secure the services of the band to enliven the occasion.

An experienced baker from Lock Haven has been engaged to assist in filling the many orders for the holidays. Persons wishing fine cakes for Christmas or New Year are requested to hand in their orders two weeks previous. Choice Cakes, finely decorated, from 50 cents to $3.00. A liberal patronage respectfully solicited.

—The following account from last Wednesday's Lock Haven Express will be of interest to many of our readers who are acquainted with Miss Mary A. Hillibish, the attractive daughter of Dr. D. J. Hillibish, dec'd, late of Rebersburg:

"The Reed-Hillibish wedding last evening at 8 30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. D. M. Brumgard, Church St., an aunt of the bride, was a very pleasant affair. The contracting parties were Mr. John B. Reed, a prominent wholesale boot and shoe merchant of Philadelphia, and Miss Mary A. Hillibish, of Rebersburg, Centre county. Rev. W. B. Glanding, pastor of the English Lutheran church, officiated, and Miss Gay Throne, of this city, and Mr. Matthew Creswell, Jr., of Overbrook, Philadelphia, acted as bridesmaid and groomsman.

Both the bride and bridesmaid were dressed in white silk, beautifully ornamented with natural flowers. About thirty intimate friends were present, who partook of the sumptuous wedding repast. Mr. and Mrs. Reed left on the 12.03 train for an extended tour of a month, after which they will make their home in West Philadelphia. The presents were numerous and costly."

RESIGNATION.—At the annual meeting of the Joint Consistory of the Rebersburg Reformed charge the resignation of Rev. N. J. Miller, pastor of the charge, was accepted. Rev. Miller will leave his present field of labor, December 31st, and will take charge of the interests of the Reformed church at Steelton, Pa., on the first day of the new year,

A committee appointed by the Joint Consistory to draft appropriate resolutions reported as follows;

WHEREAS, it is with great reluctance that we unite with Rev. N. J. Miller in petitioning Classis to sever the existing pastorial relation in which we are bound so closely together by affectionate ties, awakened and quickened into growth during his pastorate among us by his christian deportment and earnest exposition of the Word of God, therefore be it resolved,

That we bow to the will of the Great Head of the Church, who in His infinite wisdom rules over the hearts and minds of men for the welfare of His kingdom upon earth.

That we, the people of the Rebersburg charge, with one voice express our sincere regret to part with our beloved pastor; but owing to his family not becoming reconciled to living at a distance from the parental home at Lancaster, we have accepted his resignation.

That we assure our pastor that our best wishes will accompany him to his future field of labor and our prayer that it may yield an abundant harvest of souls saved for eternity.

AARONSBURG.

Howard Homan moved to Centre Hall on last Monday.

Some of our boys were out on a deer hunt last week. One deer was the result of a week's chase.

Chas. H. Stoyer has gone into the poultry business. He shipped a nice lot of dressed turkeys, geese and ducks last Wednesday.

Butchering has commenced. J. G. Meyer claims the first sausage of the season. No doubt they are good because Luther made them. ANOTHER.

SMITH TOWN.

Snow, Snow! But oh, most of us were not ready for it.

Henry Duck is nursing a sore hand.

Now is the time for hunters, and they are making good use of it. But we seldom hear of their success.

A large light north of John Kern's created quite a sensation among some of our folks last Saturday.

Once in a while we hear the Aaronsburg town clock strike. It must strike considerably louder than the one of her sistertown, for we have not heard Millheim's clock strike for quite a while.

Mr. Osman, the teacher of the Pike school reports 35 scholars on roll, a good attendance and fair progress.

Last Friday Mr. Henry Keen removed the remains of his departed ones from the Reformed cemetery, Aaronsburg to "Fairview Cemetery," Millheim, his wife and two children. A strange coincidence is that one of his boys was killed on the very hill within the new cemetery, by two horses, and that he now rests not more than ten rods from the spot where he met his sad death. JUMBO.

COBURN.

Our old time singer, Mr. Jos. Kleckner, will organize a singing class, Saturday evening, Nov. 28th, in the church. All lovers of music should come out and help to organize.

'Squire Gettig sundayed in Bellefonte, because the train failed to wait until he was through with his "biz."

Mrs. Diehl, of Laurelton, daughter of Mr. Cantner, of this place, passed through here on Monday morning, enroute for the land of the "setting sun" [Colorado,] where she will join her husband, Mr. Caleb Diehl.

Mrs. Peter Vonada, arrived in town a few days ago from Ellsworth, Kansas, and will remain with her host of friends during the winter. Six years of Kansas life has made but little change in her appearance.

The JOURNAL'S proof reader, or compositor, should put on his specks next time he gets hold of the Coburn items—"74" for 7¼; "his king" for husking and "Ardant" for Verdure. [If Mr. Z would use a little better penmanship it would greatly assist us in avoiding eventual errors. Do you see? —Ed.]

Penn township's sheriff, Saml. Ard, is in Bellefonte this week, before his honor, Judge Furst, advising him as to our good behavior, etc. Sam, do you "tremble?"

Well, the boys of Coburn got a deer the other day, and it weighed 150 lbs, clean meat too. Deer do not want to come within range of the Coburn rifles.

Quite a number of our folks are courting in Bellefonte this week. Z.

AYER'S Hair Vigor cures baldness. Hair Vigor restores youthful freshness and color to faded and gray hair. It attains these results by the stimulation of the hair roots and color glands. It rejuvenates the HAIR and cleanses it. It restores to the HAIR that, either by reason of age or diseases of the scalp, has become dry, harsh and brittle, a pliancy and glossy silken softness of extreme beauty. There is no dye in Ayer's Hair and the good it does is by the VIGOR It imparts to the follicles, and the cleanliness and healthfulness of the condition in which it maintains the scalp.

AYER'S Hair Vigor renews the hair. Hair Vigor is the best cure known for Brashy Hair, Scald Head, Itching Humors, Tetter Sores, Torpid Follicles, and all other diseases of the scalp that cause the falling of the HAIR and its fading. Nothing cleanses of the nuisance of dandruff so perfectly, and so effectually prevents its return, as AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. In addition to the curative and restorative virtues peculiar to Ayer's Hair it is a toilet luxury. The Hair VIGOR is by far the cleanliest hair-dressing made. It causes the hair to grow thick and long, and keeps it always soft and glossy.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Contains no deleterious ingredients. Its use prevents all scalp disease, secures against the hair growing thin or gray, and surely cures all baldness th is not organic.

QUAKER

Is the Best

TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Len & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has Slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

Looking After the Change.

Rear-Admiral Luce of the United States navy and Gen. de Trobriand of the army lunched at a restaurant. The check was $3.32. A $5 bill was handed to the waiter, and presently he returned with a check and change on a plate. A $1 note, a dime, and five cents lay atop of the slip of paper under which was concealed a half-dollar. The General took up the note, left the 15 cents as a tip, and got up to depart with his friend.

"Stop!" thundred the admiral to the waiter; "set down that plate."

"Yes, saire," responded the French man.

"Now, general, look at this and learn a lesson," the admiral continued. "The change out of the $5 ought to have amounted to $1.65. You only got $1, and gave 15 cents to this rascal. You never thought of the missing half-dollar. Where do you suppose it is? I will show you;" and he drew the check off the plate, disclosing the coin lying snugly underneath. "Our grimacing thief here would have had it safe in his pocket by this time if left to complete the operation. If you had stopped to count your change and discovered that it was short, he would have picked up the plate, deftly drawn aside the check and shown you that the right amount was there."

Fashion and Prices.

Two hundred and twenty-five dollars was the price which the polite salesman of a fashionable up-town tailoring establishment said the other day a suit made of such and such cloth in such and such a way would cost a lady visitor.

"Bother!" said the lady. "I won't pay any such price. I want something like this I have on, and I paid only $60 for it."

"Oh, of course, you know," replied the salesman in a deprecatory way, and with a profusion of bows, "But these American-made goods—"

"Why," interrupted the lady, "I bought this suit at your branch house in Paris only a month ago. Is all the extra price here duty?"

The salesman was fairly extuinguished, and could only gasp out: "Oh, you know, well, of course, as an old customer, we can do it a little cheaper for you; say $175?"

"No."

"Well, say $150?"

"No."

"I think we could do it for $125" was the last offer; but the lady bowed her way out, and left the store.

This incident is only illustrative of what some people will pay to be fashionable, and how other people will always stand ready to let them do it.—New York Commercial.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken by your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. From Pole to Pole

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.
Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masven, Bautoland (S. Africa,) March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.
Yours truly, T. K. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only thoroughly effective blood-purifier, the only medicine that eradicates the poisons of Scrofula, Mercury, and Contagious Disease from the system.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists: Price $1;
Six bottles for $5.

Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Sties, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains, it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as which is sufficiently powerful to expel from the system even the taint of Hereditary Scrofula.

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

DOWNS' ELIXIR.
N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR
For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
CONSUMPTION
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.
Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
SOLD EVERYWHERE.
